THE NEGRO HIGH SCHOOLS OF TEXAS ARE TO HAVE THE SAME STANDARD FOR ONE AND ALL. IS THE DEMAND OF THE EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT AT AUSTIN, AND SO SAY THE FACULTY OF NEGRO COLLEGES AND HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPALS AND INSTRUCTORS.

The Civic Racial Relations to be Studied in White Southern College.

By N. W. Harlike

The sub-committee appointed by the general committee some time ago at Palestine, convened in the Pythian Temple last Friday the 11th instant to finish their report of the classification of Negro High Schools of Texas. They thought it best not to give out anything for publication till they had reported much information to the State Department of Education at Austin. However, many phases of the classification were discussed and each speaker was given the closest attention. Principal J. D. Ryan of Houston High School was the chairman of the sub-committee, and delivered a well timed address setting forth his views touching the classification of the Negro High Schools.

L. W. Rodgers, Supervisor of Negro Rural Schools of Texas, made an extended talk, detailing much information in connection with the proposed classification, giving the history of the white High Schools in the early stages of difficulties and working conditions and the like. His remarks touched every phase of this important subject as well as the common public schools. Supervisor L. W. Rodgers is doing a commendable work in the interest of the colored schools of Texas both for the children and the teachers. He is thoroughly identified in the advancement of the higher education of these schools and in the higher efficiency of the teachers. We can not speak too highly of the efforts put forth by the present administration under Hon. Annie Webb Blanton who is deeply interested in all the children of this state, and the day is at hand when we should express our appreciation for her efforts. We shall say more of her educational executive ability in another series of the public schools of Texas.

L. W. Rodgers, Supervisor, was delegated to attend the Racial Civic Congress of Colleges at St. Louis, where plans are to be laid for the study of the race relations in white college of the south. This marks a new departure and will doubtless be productive of far reaching results. The only way to study this complicated question is to take a christian survey and an educational investigation based on the spirit of fairness and justice, and seeking its needs in the broader basis of humanity.

The following members composed the sub-committee: J. D. Ryan, chairman; C. F. Carr, Principal Dallas Colored High School; A. E. Holland, Palestine; W. J. Smith, Principal Palestine; W. J. Smith, Principal School, Houston; T. E. Goldwater, Principal Waxahatchie High School; Prof. W. J. Smith, Principal School, Dallas; Dr. O. G. Osburn, Principal Prairie View Normal and Industrial College; J. W. Brown, San Angelo; L. W. Rodgers, Supervisor Negro Rural Schools of Texas; The president of Bishop College, Maxton, was also in attendance and several others among whom were Prof. J. P. Starks of the Fred Douglass Industrial School of Dallas and N. W. Harlike, Prof. E. M. R. Marrs of the State Department at Austin was also in attendance on the meeting. The result of their finding will soon be made public and when it is hoped our high schools throughout the state will be known as high schools doing high school work, and will be required to do such by a recognized form or standard agreed upon by the Educational Department at Austin and by the faculties of the leading Negro colleges of the state and by the principals and teachers of the various high schools of this commonwealth. One standard for all of high schools, one requirement for college entrance based upon efficiency of the work done.

Since the colleges are classified, and this is as it should be, it follows that the high schools should also be classified. In the past every phase of school for the higher education, took to itself the title of college when many of them were no more than what may have been called dominated advanced high schools. In the same way many of the so called High Schools could have attained advanced common public schools with one or two elementary and Grammar Grades. It is this condition that the State Department at Austin, so far as the High Schools are concerned, is seeking to rectify in every particular. Rome was not built in a day, so it will take time and money to carry out this program of grading these high schools. Let us do what we can to speed the day of such a wise provision and the benefit to be derived from these standardized high schools for our people. This course will do much to settle the condition of unrest when it is learned that the state is interested in the welfare of our children, for there is a saying if you wish to lead the mother of the young among the lower animals, you must first lead their young before them, and the same is true of the higher animal, the man.

CONDITIONS NOW AND IN 1865

According to General Sherman's Memoirs, History Seems to Be Merely Repeating Itself.

A single page in the story of the Civil war, the Memoirs of General Sherman, carries observations by two Ohio men prominent in that war, General Sherman himself and Secretary of War Stanton, that have a strangely familiar sound now amid the distressing conditions that have followed the World war here.

General Sherman has arrived with his story at the opening of the year 1865, and he is dealing with the closing events of the Civil war. He is at Savannah and the secretary of war is there, partly on an official visit and partly for recreation. The policy of enlisting slaves is under discussion and the order giving the freed slaves the right to occupy seized lands is agreed on.

"He professed to have come from Washington for rest and recreation," writes General Sherman, "and he spoke unreservedly of the bickerings and jealousies at the national capital, of the interminable quarrels of the state governors about their quotas and more particularly of the very existence of the government itself."

"He said that the price of everything had so risen in comparison with the depreciated money that there was danger of national bankruptcy, and he appealed to me, as a soldier and patriot, to hurry up matters so as to bring the war to a close."

"I was quite impatient to get off, myself, for city life had become dull and tame, and we were all anxious to get into the pine woods again, free from the importunities of Southern women asking for protection, and of civilians from the North who were coming to Savannah for cotton and all sorts of profit."

High prices, weariness of the war conditions, eagerness on all sides for the return of peace, swarms of people at Washington—official and private citizens, with axes to grind, and speculators from the North pushing right down to the hostile lines in promoting their profiteering enterprises. But we came through it.—Columbus Dispatch.

Honors Remained With Mule.

While a circus parade was in progress at Kane, Pa., one of the elephants, thinking possibly to relieve the monotony of the occasion, gave its trunk a toss in the air and brought it down with a resounding smack on a mule that had been standing at the curb quietly watching the sights. In spite of the handicap of being hitched to a delivery wagon, the mule promptly wheeled about, took quick aim, and delivered two kicks with lightning swiftness. The kicks caught the elephant squarely on the knees. It stopped for an instant, but if it even momentarily contemplated further interchanges with the mule, it gave up the idea, and finished the parade with a decided limp.—Philadelphia Record.
